INVICTUS GAMES

The Invictus Games is an international Paralympic-style multi-sport event, created by Britain's Prince Harry, in which wounded, injured or sick armed services personnel and their associated veterans take part in sports including wheelchair basketball, sitting volleyball, and indoor rowing. The Invictus Games use the power of sport to inspire recovery, support rehabilitation and generate a wider understanding and respect for wounded, injured and sick servicemen and women.

The first Invictus Games took place in London in 2014. Since then, a Orlando, Florida hosted the second Invictus Games, and this year the Games will be in Toronto - September 23-30, 2017.

According to the Main Directorate of Military Police at Ukraine's Armed Forces, nearly 5,000 Ukrainian soldiers have sustained various injuries since the conflict broke out in the Donbas Region. Rehabilitation of Ukrainian soldiers injured while fighting in the conflict zone is one of the most urgent social challenges deserving the closest attention on the part of the government, media and NGOs.

Social integration of wounded, injured and sick service members is crucial for the public attitudes towards disabled people. Disabled people have still been facing ignorance, prejudice, and fears that are restricting their abilities and opportunities for successful careers, studying and self-development. This also holds true with wounded, injured and sick military veterans.

The Invictus Games aim to overcome stereotypes about disabled military veterans, replacing them with a sense of pride and respect for people who did not lose their zest for life despite the terrible ordeals they have been through.

The Toronto Games will bring together more than 550 competitors from 17 nations. Ukraine and Romania will take part in their first ever Invictus Games.

The 2017 Games will introduce the first-ever Invictus Games relay – igniting the Invictus Games spirit across all 32 Canadian military bases and neighbouring communities.

Tickets are available from June 15.
